McGuire chosen for CHC-Georgia board

Atlanta, July 8, 2009 – Private Bank of Buckhead’s Brian McGuire has been chosen to serve on the 2009-2010 board of Community Health Charities of Georgia. CHC-Georgia’s mission is to connect Georgia employees to the services of leading health charities through workplace giving, by which they can direct donations to their partner agencies of choice.

“Brian’s direct involvement in a non-profit that affects such a wide range of people in our community is admirable,” says Charlie Crawford, president and CEO of Private Bank of Buckhead, “especially at a time when volunteer leadership and non-profit funding are particularly challenging.”

McGuire, vice president of Treasury Management Services for the bank, is active with the Buckhead Business Association and Kiwanis International and is at work on a Professional MBA at Georgia State University.

Private Bank of Buckhead (www.PrivateBankOfBuckhead.com) brings a private banking approach to all clients across all functions of the bank.

About Community Health Charities of Georgia

By partnering with local employers, Community Health Charities connects Georgia employees to health and wellness information, volunteer opportunities and the ability to direct donations to the local health charities of their choice. It currently provides access to more than 40 leading charities, encompassing almost every well-known disease or disability and many lesser-known ones. According to a Gallup poll, the ability to direct donations to specific charities is the most significant factor in determining employee satisfaction with workplace giving programs. This is exactly what Community Health Charities – the nation’s largest workplace giving program devoted exclusively to health – is all about. <http://georgia.healthcharities.org/index.asp>
